FRAGRANCE FROM UTAH

Judge Colborn Invites Montana to Go to Salt Lake on Jubilee Day -A Wealth of Flowers and Many Happy People.

The Utah people and the committee in charge of the pioneer jubilee selected an easy way to reach the hearts of the cople of Butte when they decided to resent them with a carload of flowers, which fact was abundantly evidenced by the reception that was accorded the lilac car. At the hour announced for the arrival of the train bearing the floral offering and the committee representing the donors, the Montana Union depot was surrounded by a dense mass of struggling humanity. There were probably 3,000 people in the crowd and in their anxiety to secure some of the coveted lilacs and other fragrant products of Utah's favored soil they were all nomindful of the drizzling rain that fell just before the train arrived, and retained their places regardless of the fell just before the train arrived, and retained their places regardless of the moisture. The arrival of the train was the signal for hearty cheering and for the signal for bearty cheering and for general rush to secure an advantageous location. The lilac car was decoa general rush to secure an advantag-eous location. The lilae car was deco-rated with banners reading: "Special lilac car, First floral offering of Utah to Montana," and "Utah Pioneer Jubilee, in commemoration of the arrival of the first band of pioneers in the valley of Great Salt Lake." Another banner bore the rhyme:

They crossed the prairie, as of old Our fathers crossed the sea.
To make the West, as they the East—The homeland of the free."

The reception committee, which was composed of Mayor Harrington, President of the Council Davey, Aldermen Passoe and Knowlton, City Attorney DeWolfe, City Clerk Holland, City Physician Shultz, Public Librarian Davies and General Agent F. V. Mayor the DeWolfe, City Clerk Holland, City Physician Shultz, Public Librarian Davies and General Agent E. V. Maze of the Union Pacific immediately boarded the train and met the committee in charge of the cars, which was headed by Judge F. E. Colborn, secretary of the Salt Lake chamber of commerce. After introductions all around, Judge DeWolfo Stepped out on the platform of the floral car and in a few happy remarks introduced Judge Colborn, who addressed the large crowd briefly on the pioneer Jubilee. His remarks were as follows:

"The 24th of July, 1897, will be the first Mormon pioneer band in the valley of the Great Salt Lake, and will witness the close of a five days' celebration which will eclipse in magnitude and surpass in splendor all other celebrations ever given in the United States west of the Mississippi. On this occasion it is proposed by the people of Utah In commemorate the histogram.

sion it is proposed by the people of Utah to commemorate the birthday of West-ern civilization and to do honor to the handful of Anglo-Saxons who half a century ago broke the first trail from the Missouri river and wresting the wilderness from desolation laid the foundation for the present greatness of the mighty area between that river and the Pacific coast.

the Pacific coast.
"Impartial history must always applaud the courage of those pioneers and record their achievement as one of the greatest since the discovery of the New World. They departed from the borders of civilization, and unmindful of the savage and heedless of the desert, mountains and plain, toiled on until they penertated to the center of a wild-erness almost 3,000 miles in extent. "For nearly 20 centuries the Christian world has viewed with annacement

"For nearly 20 centuries the Christian world has viewed with amazement the journey of the children of Israel from Egypt to the Promised Land, but what was their journey to this? The lands was their journey to this? The lands that Moses saw on that pilgrimage—the dreary wastes that he traversed, measured in miles—were not equal to those his great successor, Brigham Young, and his followers passed through within the first 20 days' journey from Council Bluffs.

"Hefore this journey was undertaken all that was known of the western portion of the United States could have been inscribed on the ivory tablet of a modern society belle. Vague rumors placed in circulation by Coronado, Father Escalante and LaHonton, of wild, humpbacked oxen and great interior seas were extant; but the mighty mountains and the buried metals, the broad plains of fertile soil, and the broad plains of fertile soil, and the great timbered areas which have since produced vast wealth, were then wholly

After the journey-after the trail was broken—came the emigrant trains and the pony express, and the stage coach, and the railroad, and with them gradually rising higher and higher rolled the wave of humanity which has peopled the Western empire and drawn through it the lines of a dozen or more populous and productive states.

through it the lines of a dozen or more populous and productive states.

"In the celebration of all this the people of Utah will concentrate their energies and expend their moneys in July next, and such a celebration as it will be! It will cost $100,000. The pony express will be re-established and messages again be sent overland in the old way. The stage coaches will be dragged from their hiding places and pass once more over 'the Ben Holliday trail.'

Those who are living of the original pioneers will be present and half a century after the close of their memorable tury after the close of their memorable pilgrimage they will again enter the Salt Lake valley by the old road in the old way. In fact, it is intended to reproduce true to life every step taken by civilization in this region since the settlement in 1847. All of the strength and vigor and enterprise of the people of igor and enterprise of the people of tah will be enlisted in this celebration, or the intention is to make it an event which will attract national attention.

"At this time it is impossible to more than outline the most important features of the occasion. The work of preparation is in the hands of a commission created by the laws of the state, and no effort will be spared to make the affair one of great magnifiwhich will attract national attention

"The people of Montana are invited

"The people of Montana are invited to participate in the celebration. It will occur when Utah's scenic and climatic splendors are at their best—when the many-colored garments of harvest are on her fertile valleys, and when bathing in her 'inland sait sea' is most perfect. Low railroad rates—lower han ever before announced—will make the visit inexpensive, and those who fail to join the throngs which will then pour into Utah will miss the opportunity of a lifetime."

At the close of his speech the distribution of the wealth of flowers with which the car was packed to the doors was commenced. There were about 35 wagon loads, or five tons of lilacs which were procured at Brigham, Ogden and Willard, and in addition there were 2,000 carnations, 3,000 sweet peas, 1,000 sweet elysium, 1,000 marguerites and about 1,500 potted plants. There were not many people in the crowil who had ever seen so many flowers at one time and the interior of the car presented a beautiful picture. It was the intention to make a systematic distribution of the flowers, but it was soon found that such a procedure was impossible on account of the irresitible small boys who surrounded the car and could not be driven away. Under this condition of affairs it became necessary to throw great armfuls of lilacs out into the crowd and let the people fight for them, and the supply was so abundant that thousands of people went away happy with large bouquets and there was no one who went away empty handed. After all of the flowers had been distributed the visitors were escorted by the reception committee to the Butte hotel, where they were entertaind at dinner. A lot of the cut and potted flowers were reserved and they will be distributed among the different hospitals of the city in the morning.

The following is a list of the Salt Lake people who accompanied the Salt Lake car: Edward F. Colborn and wife, J. E. Edwards and wife, Miss Edna Sherman, Miss Afton Young, Mrs. F. W. Jennings, R. C. Morris, H. F. McGarvie, John E. Hansen of the Deseret News, William Nelson of the Salt Lake Herald, and W. J. Lawrence.

After dinner the visitors were shown through the public library and several of them accepted Manager Maguire's invitation to visit the theater. To-day they will be shown around the city as extensively as possible and they will probably have no cause to complain of

An inquest will be held at Sherman's undertaking rooms at 4 o'clock this afternoon on the body of Charles Wil-son, at which time all of the facts in son, at which time all of the facts in connection with his suicide will be brought out. Marco Medin, jr., a broth-er-in-law of the deceased, said yester-day that he thought the accounts of the suicide placed Mrs. Wilson in rather a wrong light and that it might look as if Wilson had committed suicide on his wife's account. Mr. Medin said the wife's account. Mr. Medin said the facts were that Wilson never supported facts were that Wilson never supported his wife and could not provide her with a home. For that reason she did not live with him after his return from Arizona. Mr. Medin said that he has been supporting Wilson's child while Wilson had been spending his money in gambler and lost all his earnings in that way and only a week or so before his death he got $20 from his wife which he also spent. Mr. Medin said that Mrs. Wilson would have been only too glad to live with her husband if he could and would have provided a home for his family.

IT'S BRUTAL MURDER

The Body of Adolph Schwade Found in a Tunnel.

DEAD FOR SEVERAL DAYS

Robbery No Doubt the Motive for the Terrible Crime-An Old Time Citizen and Well Known-No Clue.

A brutal murder came to light yesterday when the body of Adolph Schwade was discovered in a tunnel opposite his cabin in Whiskey gulch about 200 yards south of the point where the B., A. & P. railroad crosses the Burlington wagon road. He had been dead for several days, and it is evident that the murder was the work of robbers, who killed the old man for what money he was supposed to possess. On account of the time elapsed between the murder and the discovery of it, there is little doubt that it will be added to Silver Bow's long list of unavenged crimes.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon Undertaker Richards was notified by Fred Hicks of No. 110 West La Platte street, that the body of an old man. "Fritz," a sobriquet by which the de-ceased was generally known, had been found in a tunnel opposite his cabin. Coroner Tremblay was immediately no-tified, and he and the undertaker and Dead Detective Chance Harris proceed-Dead Detective Chance Harris proceeded to the scene. On the way they picked up Chris Burgley, the dead man's nearest neighbor, and Pat O'Mailey, who accompanied them to Schwade's cabin. The interior of the cabin was greatly disarranged and the furnishings were disarranged and the furnishings were thrown around in all directions, but there were no indications of a murder having been committed there. They then secured a lantern, and after climbing down a 30-foot embankment in front of the cabin, crossed the gulch and entered the tunnel.

The tunnel is probably 25 feet long, and about 15 feet from the entrance the body of Schwade was found lying the body of Schwade was found lying on its back. The feet were towards the breast of the tunnel and the arms were thrown back over the head. The vest and shirt were open, the overalls partly off, and the pockets of the pants and overalls were turned inside out. On in-vestigation it was found that there was a builet hole in the right breast, about two inches above the nipple. The ground underneath the head was satu-rated with blood, and on removing the body outside a large gash, which was surrounded by a great many bruises, was found in the back of the head. The body was brought into the city and re-moved to Richards' undertaking rooms, where an inquest will be held.

The supposition is that Schwade was murdered by robbers and that after rifling his pockets they ransacked the cabin, which would account for its disarranged condition. The coroner believes that he was shot down in the cabin and that the body was afterwards thrown down the embankment and dragged into the tunnel and that the cuts in the back of the head were sustained in falling down the embankment. Others believe that he was killed in or near the tunnel. He had been working in the tunnel and his pick murdered by robbers and that after been working in the tunnel. He had and shovel and drills were found close to the body.

Schwade was a placer miner and had lived in and around Butte for 30 years. He was an old soldier and came to Montana soon after the close of thes war. He was a partner with C. S. Warren and S. Marchessau in considerable mining property. He was about 60 years old and was well known, particularly among the Germans of Butte, He had lived in the cabin where he was He had lived in the cabin where he was killed for 8 or 10 years and had been held up two or three times in the last three years, but he never lost anything, as he did not keep any money in the cabin. His body was cold and rigid when found and had all of the appearances of having been dead for two or three days and possibly a week. The old man's nearest neighbors don't remember of having seen him for about two weeks. The sheriff's office was notified of the murder last evening and went to work on the case.

SWEEPING DENIAL Mrs. Smith Didn't Attempt to Commit Suicide-Only Ate Onions.

Mrs. W. L. Smith, who was reported to have attempted suicide early yester-day morning, called at the Standard office last evening to deny the whole story. She made a sweeping denial of everything that had been published about the affair and denied everything but that she had eaten onions for din-ner. She said that she had been subpert to spells such as she had yesterday morning ever since childhood and they were caused by heart trouble. She de-nied that she was jealous of her hus-band or that she had any cause to be, or that he had sold their furniture.
